On February of this year, while on a deserted street of Rome one of our veteran members Mrs K while looking through her issued oculus monocle was lucky enough to spy a 36-J class goblin and what looked like a baby dragon. The last reported dragon sighting was 1975 in Prague. After trading the goblin a photo of her late husband from her purse Mrs K was able to open a dialogue with the cranky being. Due to local industry and increase in pollutant it has been reported dragon numbers are at an all time low. Even Goblin numbers are diminishing as they need handmade cake for their young and so much human food is now stamped by a machine. It is recommended by Pixie Patrol Command that all members do their best to make their own food with natural ingredients and limit their consumption of processed food.

One of our Welsh members, Mr F, was out on a fishing trip last Winter had unfortunate turn events where when his small craft was overturned in a squall. His ships emergency equipment was not enough as he was thrown from his craft in to freezing ocean. This is when his luck turned, he was helped to shore by none other than a mermaid. The lady helped him up onto a small island allowing him to catch his breath thus saving his life. Upon regaining conciseness, he was able to spend a short time speaking with her. She was not having a good day either as she was mourning the loss of her sister who had an accident with a plastic bag. Mermaids and other sea creatures it was pointed out have been trying to stay out of humans way but it is getting more difficult as even the seas are getting filled with human waste.

It is recommended by Pixie Patrol Command that all members keep their use of single use plastic to a minimum as we don't want to hear the loss of any more sea creatures.
